

Ovarian Cancer Testimonial # 93:

Complaining of abdominal pains, Louisa from Alberta found out she had ovarian cancer. While awaiting surgery, she fell ill with a persistent cough and malaise which turned out to be a metastasis (spreading cancer) which had traveled to her lung. She ultimately needed pelvic surgery to relieve her discomfort, but decided not to undergo treatment for her lung metastasis. She started taking Immunocal and multivitamins daily and noticed a great improvement after several weeks. Four months later, repeat chest x-rays showed no increase in tumor size. Nine month later the radiographs revealed a decrease in tumor size. Louise continues to enjoy tending to her family and household.
